ProScape Of Alabama

Todd Brown, President and CEO of ProScape of Alabama, Inc., entered the field over twenty years ago. His career began in sales consulting and greenhouse management. Through this work, he gained a working knowledge of sales and plant material.

Todd went on to secure a position with a well established landscape firm. Working as a senior estimator and project manager, he specialized in installation and property maintenance. Todd also obtained a wealth of knowledge in landscape irrigation and design.

Todd then advanced his career in landscape design. Through expertise creativity, he shaped functional outdoor living areas that embraced the beauty of nature. He provided consulting and project management services, as well.

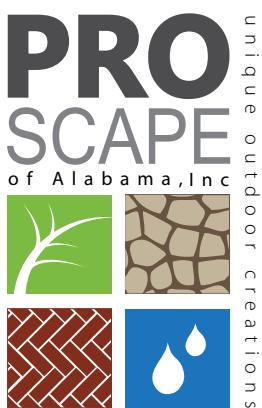

In 1998, Todd founded what is now known as ProScape of Alabama, Inc., where he specializes in custom residential landscape installation and property maintenance.

Water Features

Water features can be as simple as a well located bird bath to a cascading waterfall or pool. The uniqueness of water is its ability to take many forms and resonate with varied sounds. Over the many years as watershapers, we have discovered a multitude of ways to introduce water into the landscape. A full understanding of the mechanics of hydraulics that moves water combined with a eye for beauty allows us to complete your liquid vision.

Irrigation

Almost any landscape can benefit from a professionally designed and installed irrigation system. While many factors contribute to the ultimate success of a your greenscape, water may be the single most important factor in maintaining a healthy landscape. Too much or too little and a beautiful yard can become a disaster area. Considering the added value a beautiful, well maintained, lush landscape can add to your home, an irrigation system just might be one of your smartest long-term home investments.
